PREFACE

This reference aid is designed to meet the need for a functional reference guide to the administrative structure of the Cuban Government and of the various official and mass organizations with the names of incumbent key personalities. The latest date of information is October 1977.

A hierarchical table of contents is provided at the front of the directory. This is followed by a glossary of terms and a map illustrating the new provincial and municipal boundaries. At the end of the directory is an alphabetical index of personality names followed by a chart depicting the Cuban leadership.

Notable governmental changes have occurred within the past two years. The sixth Cuban Constitution was proclaimed on 24 February 1976 following a referendum in which 97.7 percent of those participating voted in favor of its adoption. Law No. 1304 promulgated in July 1976 expanded Cuba's 6 provinces to 14 and reduced its 407 municipalities to 169, including the special municipality of the Isle of Pines. The new law eliminated the regional level of government between the province and the municipality. On 10 October 1976 nationwide elections for delegates to the municipal assemblies were held. On 2 November 1976 these delegates from the 169 municipalities elected 481 deputies to the National People's Government Assembly. The National Assembly, which met on 2 December 1976, elected the membership of the Council of State and approved the appointments of the Council of Ministers. In theory, the National Assembly constitutes the highest organ of the Cuban Government. When it is not in session, the authority to approve laws is vested in the Council of State.

This publication supersedes A (CR) 74-7 dated March 1974. Suggestions, corrections and updated information to this reference aid are welcomed and appreciated.
